Superintendent discusses levy, taxes and how they impact local schools

Next month, Grant County residents will be asked to cast their vote on whether the local school system keeps its current excess levy in place or, potentially, lets that funding lapse.

The issue of the school levy will be on the May primary ballot, with voters able to either vote for or against the measure.

Grant County superintendent Mitch Webster sat down last week to discuss his view on the positive impact the levy has on students and the community.

Beyond the direct impact of the additional funds to assist with facility upgrades and repairs, additional personnel and funds to expand school safety, Webster said the levy also makes the county more eligible to receive grant funds that can go towards large projects.

Specifically, Webster pointed to the new $5.3 million pre-kindergarten expansion that has been approved for construction at Petersburg Elementary School.

"When you go to the SBA [West Virginia School Building Authority] and ask for money for a project like that, they can somewhat laugh at you if you don't bring any county money to show good faith that you as a community are willing to invest in it, too," Webster said. "They usually like to have 20-30%. But we were able to bring $500,000 to the table and, in return, received nearly $5 million. And, if we had not had the levy in place, I don't know if we would have had the funds to put that match forward."

PRESS

Webster clarified that the matching funds are not levy money but the levy allowed them to free up the matching funds from other sources.

The levy on the ballot will be slightly smaller than the one approved in 2020, dropping from 26% to 21.6% and will raise nearly $10 million over the course of five years. Currently, 44 out of 55 counties in West Virginia have an excess levy in

Commission names new EMS director, approves purchase of thermal drone for PVFC

After a series of discussions with candidates during an executive session, the Grant County Commission announced last week that Jeffrey Teter would be hired as the new director of Grant County Ambulance.

The announcement came near the end of the regularly scheduled meeting of the Grant County Commission on April 9.

Beyond his work with emergency medical services, Teter is a volunteer with the Maysville Volunteer Fire Company and president of the Grant County Volunteer Fire Association. He is set to officially begin in the new role later this week.

The commission also met with Hunter Whetzel, Ashton Barr and Marshall Collins to discuss the purchase of a thermal drone - a piece of technology for which the recent brush fires have highlighted as a need.

"Pretty much what ours allows us to do is get up into the air and take a picture," Whetzel explained. "If the wind is high, we can't really fly. That was a big issue we had during the fires we just had a few weeks ago."

Whetzel said that the drone can be especially helpful in search-and-rescue efforts, allowing the department to get an image to search for signs of clothing or any indication of the missing person. However, with the current drone used by the department, this is limited heavily by weather and daylight.

Whetzel requested the commission assist the department in funding the purchase of a thermal drone, which he said will help provide a much more efficient image for search and rescue or even early fire detection.

"With a thermal drone, they collect heat and puts out a picture of that," Whetzel said. "If it detects heat, it shows up in a very bright color on that screen in our hands while we are operating that drone. For search-andrescue, that will save us a lot of time and maybe prevent having to call in a helicopter with thermal imaging."

Whetzel explained that the drone the department was requesting to purchase was often used by hunters, who use the technology to find an animal they had shot which had fled. The new drone would also be able to fly in winds of up to 50 mph and can operate in the rain.

of fentanyl pills locally

A Maryland woman has admitted to supplying thousands of fentanyl pills to dealers in Grant County and the surrounding areas.

According to a press release from the United States Attorney's Office, Daniela Marie Giancoli, 34, of Baltimore, Md., has plead guilty to a charge of conspiracy to distribute fentanyl.

According to court documents and statements made in court, Giancoli supplied large amounts of fentanyl to dealers in Grant County and elsewhere.

Nearly 9,000 fentanyl pills, weighing more than two kilograms, were found during the investigation. Giancoli and co-defendant, Michael Matthews, worked together out of their Baltimore apartment to sell drugs to more than 10 dealers in the area.

Giancoli is facing up to 20 years in federal prison. A

I'm still waiting on a part for our refrigerator, so in the meantime, we have a mini fridge on the counter that holds a quart of milk, a pint of half-n-half, a few sticks of butter, some cheese slices and a couple bottles of water.

It's a big improvement over the big cooler on the deck. Going out in the rain, in the dark, to get some milk or an apple was an inconvenient mess.

We've always had leftovers in our fridge and have a second meal out of them, or I used them for my lunch at work.

Now I have nothing like that. I have to think about what I make or order. It's also cut down severely on the grocery shopping, and in turn, my caloric intake.

I don't know about you, but having a fridge full of cheese, fruit, snacks, leftovers, etc. causes a lot of "grazing" that I don't need to do.

I don't think I've lost any weight, but it has changed my habits some.

It was always odd to me when I read historical books, that people visited the green grocer, butcher, baker, at frequent intervals.

According to the guru of all information, the internet, refrigerators became common in the average household in the 1940s. They were available before that, but not everyone had electric or gas to power appliances installed in their homes.

I wonder how many little mom and pop shops closed up when the refrigerator became common.

At the farm, my grandma had a refrigerator, but she also kept some things cool in the spring house.

At the time, many refrigerators had one big door with the freezer inside, and a drip tray underneath it.

Grandma used to keep hot dogs in that pullout tray and we kids must have gone through pounds of those things in a summer.

We used to eat them cold or stick one on a granny fork and roast it over the open gas flame on her range.

The one we had at home had a removable egg tray on the door towards the top. One time my sister was digging around in the fridge and the door started to close on her. She stood up, bumped the bottom of the egg tray with her head and a dozen eggs flipped and smashed on the floor.

My favorite thing was to sneak into the fridge and get a mouthful of whipped cream from a spray can.

The worst thing was trying to get an ice cube out of those crazy aluminum ice trays with the handles across the top. First you had to run some water across them to melt the ice a little so you could work the lever.

After trying to get it to release the cubes with no results, you resorted to smashing, using hot water or finding dad. Even the plastic trays that twist were and are a complete pain. Especially when you go to get a few cubes out and find an empty tray.

There was also the occasional defrosting of the freezer when ice built up, usually using pans of hot water to speed things up. This being necessary because children kept open-

- 5 ounces (about 1 1/4sleeves) Ritz crackers
- 2 teaspoons finely
- grated lime zest
- Make the filling:

Add condensed milk, heavy cream, and sour cream to a mixing bowl. Add the lime juice and whisk until the mixture is smooth and thick, about 1 minute.

— Layer:

Use a 1/2 cup measuring cup to add filling to the bottom of an 8-inch ing the refrigerator door on hot summer days before the introduction of air conditioning. "Shut the refrigerator door!" could be heard quite often.

I sometimes wonder how my parents and grandparents survived hot summer days with no A/C, big families and small refrigerators.

Since warm days are becoming more frequent, here is an icebox recipe, which I may try after my fridge is fixed.

Repeat, alternating layers of filling and crackers, ending with a final layer of the remaining filling; you should have 3 layers of crackers and 4 layers of filling. Sprinkle the top with lime zest.

— Chill and serve:

Loosely cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate for at least 2 hours or overnight. Serve chilled. The pie will keep well in the fridge for up to 3 days or in the freezer for up to 1 month. If frozen, let thaw for 10 minutes at room temperature before serving.

The employees of Grant Rehabilitation and Care Center have chosen Harold "Donnie" Kessel as their GRCC Resident of the Week. Donnie has been a resident of our facility since October 19, 2023. He was born on December 25, 1934, at Scherr, West Virginia, delivered by Dr. Dyer, to Arthur and Alice (Wolfe) Kessel. Donnie was the baby of six boys. He had four half-brothers, Lynn, Dorsey, and Vernon Leon Kessel and Lester Keith Wolfe. He had one brother, Arthur "Mike" Kessel. He is the last remaining member of his family. Arthur was a farmer and owned the Kessel Lumber Company. Alice was a stay-at-home mother. Donnie spent his childhood on the farm, and most of his days in the woods. Alice was active with her sons, teaching them how to hunt #### and fish.

Donnie attended elementary school in Scherr, and then transferred to a schoolhouse in Medley. He completed his high school education at Petersburg High School, where he played on the football team. While in high school, Donnie met his future bride, Bernadine Bergeson.

In January 1954, Donnie enlisted in the U.S. Army. He would be stationed in Garmisch Germany, where he served as a military policeman. He completed his service in 1956.

In 1957, Donnie mar-first son, David Kessel was born. His younger brother, Bernard followed on January 19, 1962.

Donnie continued to work for the Conservation Service, which evolved into the Natural Resources Conservation Service through the federal government. He retired in 1992. He is proud of his career.

After retiring, Donnie came back home and started his second career farming. At times, he would refer to farming as his hobby. He joked that he would have as many cows as his retirement would allow He was interested in the genetics of breeding cattle. After coming home, Donnie also enjoyed hunting and fishing like he did when he was younger. Donnie and Bernadine traveled to all the National Parks. They went to Norway, and back to Germany to where Donnie had been stationed. They also enjoyed going to Nags Head, Donnie is most proud of his sons and his grandchildren. They have four grandsons, Derek, Zebulon, Jesse, and Ben, and two granddaughters, Miranda and Lauren.

Unfortunately, David passed away on July 15, 2010, because of a vehicular accident. Bernard passed away after a 20-month cancer battle on January 18, 2022. Donnie and Bernadine both continue to grieve for their sons but are very thankful for their grandchildren.

Donnie's health declined to the point that the family was not able to provide for his care at home, and he became a member of the GRCC family.

At the facility, he enjoys visiting with family and staff.

Congratulations Donnie on being GRCC's Resident of the Week!

State Social Studies Fair hosts 500 students, Grant County brings home medals

First place winners Norah Jackson and Raelyn Davis

The West Virginia Department of Education (WVDE) hosted more than 500 students in Charleston last week as part of the 2024 West Virginia State Social Studies Fair (WVSSSF).

Students worked individually and in teams to enter approximately 320 projects. The event brought students from 40 counties to the Charleston Coliseum and Convention Center and featured the largest competition field within the last 10 years.

Students in grades 3-12 presented projects in content areas such as anthropology, economics, political science, U.S. history, psychology and more.

Participating students earned first place in their school, county and regional competitions. Judges scored projects based on a student-led oral presentation, research and findings, theme and overall display.

Social studies education challenges students to ask thought-provoking questions, predict outcomes, create solutions and draw conclusions from recognized behavioral patterns.

The WVSSSF expands these learning outcomes by rewarding students for their dedication to extracurricular education and providing authentic learning opportunities that enhance their self-development, research, communication and critical thinking skills.

"It is inspiring to see students so passionate about their education and confident in their skills and talents. The future of the Mountain State shines bright knowing students of this caliber are tomorrow's thought-leaders, innovators, teachers and more," said State Superintendent of Schools Michele L. Blatt.

"This experience is something I hope will carry them throughout their educational journey and into their careers, knowing they are capable of anything they aspire to do."

The WVDE established the WVSSSF in 1977 in partnership with Marshall University and with input from a group of West Virginia social studies teachers. The first fairs were in Huntington and later moved to Charleston.

The competition field was comprised of three divisions, each with first-, second-, and third-place winners:

Division One: Grades 3 – 5; 82 winners

Division Two: Grades 6 – 8; 87 winners

Division Three: Grades 9 - 12; 85 winners

Grant County brought home several medals in both Division Two and Division Three.

Taking first place in Division Two, Sociology, Group, were the team of Norah Jackson and Raelyn Davis. Their project was Elizabeth Blackwell - First Wave Feminist.

Also taking a first place in Division Two, U.S. History, Group, was the team of Ava Hess and Addi Bergdoll. Their project was Hedy Lamar - The Mother of Wi-Fi.

Second place winners in Division Two from Grant County were:

Kaylee Wolford and Ellianna Alt, Anthropology, Group, with their project, A Cherokee Way of Life; Adelyn Rumer, Economics, Individual, with her project, Moo Problems Moo Money;

Maggie Whetzel and Charolette Rexroad, Economics, Group, with their project, One for the Money Two for the Show.

Taking third place honors in Division Two, Anthropology, Individual, was Lucy Groves with her project, Stitching the Seams.

In Division Three, Haley Judy was awarded second place in U.S. History, Individual, for her project, Tylenol Murders.

Also in Division Three, Angela Willis was awarded honorable mention in Psychology, Individual, for her project, Depression and Anxiety.

A list of winners and photos of the event may be found at wvde.us

Parents of the participants accompanied them to the state contest. Organizing the county fair was MES principal Megan DiBenedetto, PES principal Bubba Hedrick, PES teacher Teddy Ketterman, and Barb DiBenedetto.

WV shared editorial GOP gubernatorial primary still a messy logjam

The Charleston Gazette-Mail

Polling has shown West Virginia Republican and independent voters aren't particularly fired up about any one candidate for governor, and that trend continues in a new poll released with only about a month to go before the election.

A MetroNews poll conducted last week shows Attorney General Patrick Morrisey with a slim lead over Moore Capito among likely voters, 31% to 29%. However, the poll shows Capito with a lead over Morrisey among independents.

Nothing new there. Morrisey and Capito have been the leading candidates in a crowded field in every poll that's been conducted so far. Both candidates have also been within the margin of error (in this case, 4.9%) of overtaking the other in most of those polls.

But the other consistent trend is that a sizable number of respondents still haven't made up their minds. The MetroNews poll showed 10% of voters are undecided, and another 3% prefer someone other than Morrisey, Capito, car dealer Chris Miller or Secretary of State Mac Warner.

Granted, that's way down from a poll released last year showing "undecided" leading the entire field, at 29%, just above Morrisey at 28%. Still, if the new poll accurately reflects likely voter opinions, that's a huge chunk of voters for a race that's so close, which throws the whole thing into a foggy logjam.

No one candidate is likely to pick up that entire bloc of undecided voters, and it's far from certain whether the 3% who say they prefer another candidate will even vote or that they'll pick someone who is on the ballot. But even if all of those voters fragment among the four candidates, where they go could make a huge difference at the top.

Interestingly, this new poll has Miller, son of Rep. Carol Miller, R-W.Va., at 16% and Warner at 12%. Warner has consistently been around that number in a variety of polls, but Miller was previously polling in the single digits. Miller's campaign has been pouring on the advertising as of late, while Warner's camp has been mostly silent, at least in terms of TV ads bombarding viewers during the early evening local news slots.

As Morrisey, Miller and supposedly nonaffiliated political action committees have hammered each other over who is more supportive of Trump and who would ban transgender athletes harder (a somewhat meaningless issue, considering West Virginia already has a transgender sports ban), Capito is now running a more toned-down campaign (by 2024 standards, anyway).

Secretary of State Mac Warner says W.Va. will not accept voter registrations illegally gathered by federal agents

After a recent frustrating and convoluted conference call between the White House and secretaries of state, W.Va. Secretary of State Mac Warner has doubled down on his staunch opposition to the latest attempt by the Federal Government to take over voter registration processes from states.

In March 2021, President Biden signed Executive Order 14019 (the "EO"), which improperly claims, "it is the responsibility of the federal government to expand access to, and education about, voter registration and election information[.]"

It goes on to require every federal agency head to design plans related to voter registration, ensure access to certain incarcerated individuals in federal custody, and design a ballot tracking system for absentee voters under UOCAVA. There is no such responsibility enumerated in the U.S. Constitution, and the 10th Amendment clearly states that powers not expressly given to the federal government by the Constitution are reserved to the states.

the White House to explain the EO's legality and im-Secretary plementation, Warner led a coalition of 14 other secretaries of state and sent a letter to the White House calling on the president to rescind his unconstitutional directive.

"Article 1 Section 4 of the U.S. Constitution says the times, places, and manner of holding elections, shall be left to the state legislatures," said Secretary Warner.

"West Virginia will emphatically not give up our State's duty to register voters in a nonpartisan manner to the Federal Government, nor will we accept voter registration forms collected by Federal agents." - Mac Warner, WV SOS

"West Virginia will emphatically not give up our state's duty to register voters in a nonpartisan manner to the federal government, nor will we accept voter registration forms collected by federal agents. White House overtaking of state responsibilities is something we will fight all the way to the Supreme Court."

offer voter registration opportunities. The White House knows they are prohibited from self-assuming power over the states' voter registration processes.

"Biden's EO [executive order] is federal overreach. This executive order is nothing more than another attempt by the White House to take away states' powers, federalize elections, and turn voter registration into a partisan activity. Voter registration should be an apolitical service by individual states."

The coalition of states objecting to the EO waited nearly two years and heard nothing from the White House. That changed last week when the country's chief election officials were notified on a call with the White House that they are implementing voter registration-related policies. Mississippi Secretary of State Michael Watson was on that call. In his op-ed released recently, Secretary

Watson states, "I then had the chance to ask a White House official about the plans submitted by each agency to carry out the illegal executive order. I was told those plans are not public, and they never intended for them to be public. So much for transparency."

The White House did not consult with state election officials in the development of the policies and plans to implement the EO, nor did the White House explain the need to deploy substantial federal resources to enact their plans during a presidential election cycle.

"I take great issue with the White House in that they did not consult state election officials before ordering federal agencies to develop and deploy plans on how to engage in voter registration activities in our respective states," Warner said.

I am writing in response to the article last week concerning feral/stray cats. Why in the world would the city think trapping/ euthanizing will solve the problem? Even if an entire colony of cats would be effectively removed this way, it would only create an "vacant" area for new cats to move into.

And fining the caring people that feed them? Would the fines also happen for less than tidy homeowners who leave trash cans full of bits of food with lids not firmly shut?

Let's leave our hard working police force to fight crime, as they were hired to do - not prosecute compassionate people who don't know what else to do about the animals in their area and care enough to try to do what they can for these kitties.

The article mentioned that Sarah Moomau contacted the city of Winchester to ask about how they deal with their stray/ feral problem, and she received no suggestions.

examples of populations of cats that are dwindling, not increasing, by aggressive use of the Trap/Neuter/Release program- TNR.

Or she could also contact Cats Cradle in Harrisonburg, who would give her solid advice on how to begin to address our own overpopulation problem.

TNR involves trapping entire neighborhoods of cats, getting them "fixed" so they can no longer reproduce, plus administering vaccinations, and ear tipping each cat so those in the neighborhood know these cats have been treated.

The cats no longer have the urge to mate, so the screaming and fighting for dominance is gone, plus urine marking to establish territory is greatly diminished. A spayed or neutered cat is much calmer and better behaved!

People living in town should not have to go through what "D.K." is currently experiencing. City Council, PLEASE step up and affect some real change with proven methods that actually have a shot at really working!

Yes, this is not a once and done solution. It will take likely years of working hard to get each cat taken care of plus also targeting newcomers that undoubtedly will continue to appear for a while.

It is a long term project expensive, time consuming, and frustrating at times when people continue to discard unwanted animalsopening up a whole new portal, but it DOES work!

PLEASE, we need a LOW COST spay/neuter clinic here. Can we offer potential businesses a tax break or other incentives to move in here? Can we work with nearby organizations already established?

Right below the article mentioned was an outstanding example of what the community can do when the right people step up and take action.

Our dog pound now has top of the line runs and kennels for the incarcerated pups and a high rate of adoption, instead of the ancient concrete "cells" and almost certain euthanasia that used to await any poor soul that found themselves locked up.

Solutions won't come easy, or fast ... but with proper guidance this issue can be a thing of the past.

The Grant County Court meeting in regular session, appointed Robert Sites to the position of county administrator to serve as liason between the county court and other county agencies.

The Grant County Industrial Park received a big boost in the form of a $211,000 grant from the federal government. The Economic Development Administration formally approved the funds for the 60 acre park.

A tractor trailer went out of control at Gormania and before it had come to rest, damage estimated between $75,000 and $100,000 had been caused. The westbound rig, hauling a load of molasses for Southern States Cooperative out of Baltimore, went out of control on U.S. Route 50, struck the bridge spanning the Potomac River, tore out about 100 feet of guard rail and slammed into a three-story apartment house.

Dr. Howard Maxwell, active member of the Grant County Board of Education, filed as a candidate in the primary election.

Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Treadway of Arlington, Va., announced the birth of a son, John Chapman, April 11, at George Washington Hospital.

To the dismay of the Vikings, they dropped their first baseball contest of the season to an experienced Keyser nine by the score of 3-2.

Petersburg VA clinic to host veterans toxin exposure outreach event

A PACT Act outreach event will be offered at the Petersburg VA Clinic, 15 Grant Street, on Thursday, April 18, from 10 a.m. - 2 p.m.

This event will provide information regarding the Promise to Address Comprehensive Toxics (PACT) Act of 2022 and provide a screening for toxin exposure as well as help veterans apply for enrollment in VA health care.

The PACT Act expands and extends eligibility for VA health care for veterans who were exposed to burn pits, Agent Orange or other toxins while in the military.

No reservations are required to attend.

Pollsters picked up on this to some degree, telling MetroNews that Morrisey and Miller seem to be fighting one another to secure far-right, hardline voters, while Capito (son of Sen. Shelley Moore Capito, R-W.Va.) is courting independents.

Next month's GOP primary happens to be the last, at least for the foreseeable future, in which independents are allowed to vote and, despite recent registration gains by the GOP, roughly 30% of West Virginia voters are independents or registered as something other than Republican or Democrat. Those independents lean Republican and played a huge part in helping the GOP take control of the state after more than eight decades of Democratic Party dominance.

By wooing those voters, Capito might manage to slide through, if Morrisey and Miller continue to pursue a path of mutually assured political destruction.

Bear in mind that polls, especially those focusing on candidate popularity, are limited in what they reveal. The numbers can only infer what voters might be thinking, and sometimes offer even less as to why.

For now, the undecided voters remain the most interesting factor in the horse race aspect of this ugly battle for the GOP gubernatorial nomination.

Medicaid denture bill signed; law becomes effective July 1

By Lori Kersey - West Virginia Watch

Gov. Jim Justice approved a bill that aims to make dentures more accessible to Medicaid recipients.

With Justice's signature last month, House Bill 4933 will become effective July 1.

Medicaid currently covers diagnostic, preventative and restorative dental services, with the exclusion of cosmetic services. The bill changes the state's cap on Medicaid dental coverage cap from $1,000 per year to $2,000 over two years. It's meant to allow Medicaid recipients to get both sets of dentures at the same time at a cost of about $600 each.

Dental care professionals say because of the current cap, Medicaid recipients were not able to get both sets at the same time, which goes against the standard of care for dentistry.

The Senate and the House of Delegates had both passed versions of the legislation unanimously.

Hallie Mason, executive director of the West Virginia Dental Association, said the organization applauds the governor and Legislature for recognizing a bureaucratic obstacle to oral health care and fixing it.

"The new law enables dentists to provide more care to Medicaid patients in fewer office visits," she said. "It will not increase the cost of the care, so it is a win for Medicaid patients and taxpayers."

these points call for elaboration.

Respective of "inverted narrative," it will again be best to offer an example of this discombobulated farright mischief wherein will pointedly be made clear the ultimate, lamentable, emptiness of this same farright's raison d'etre.

Specifically, the term "RINO" ("Republican in Name Only") is applied by the far-right to traditional Republicans. As much is exceedingly inane insofar as traditional Republicans (two of the better known being veteran conservative pundit George F. Will, and former Congressperson Liz Cheney) support American Democracy and the Freedoms that attend therewith. Conversely, those that level the term "RINOs" at traditional Republicans — and as many of their influential leaders have forthrightly expressed — are dismissive of Democracy and the Constitution upholding same. This, obviously, can only be construed as those labelling as "RINOs" traditional Republicans are they themselves in fact the "RI-NOs!" Q.E.D.

Concerning the fear inherent to the far-right ---and for which fear the farright (over)compensates with machismo, misogyny, and/or white male exceptionalism — this fear is founded on an existential lack. The void generated — for example, by the demise of "Communism" - required filling. Thus, as explained by 20th century psychologist, Erich Fromm: "The frightened individual seeks for somebody or something to tie his self to; he cannot bear his own individual self any longer, and he tries frantically to get rid of it and to find security again by elimination of the burden: the self."

The far-right void was readily filled by unabashed power-hungry, lucre-loving, leaders preying upon their less sophisticated followers. Hence, did these themselves confused, however power-hungry - leaders deploy a cheap anti-Democratic nationalism, supported by an even cheaper (and easier) white supremacy and misogyny!

Therewith, has the "existential far-right's lack" lamentably not been de-voided with Truth and Justice (authenticity), but with a self-evidently blind Untruth and Injustice (inauthenticity).

ocal and area obituaries MARY LOUISE HARMAN BOWERS

Educator, entrepreneur, and colorful member of the North Fork community, Mary Louise Harman Bowers passed away at her home at Seneca Rocks, West Virginia, on April 8, 2024. She was born January 4, 1931, at Macksville, the daughter of Ivan and Gae Vance Harman.

Louise attended the one room schools in the Harman Hills before graduating from Circleville High School with the class of 1948. She then went to Davis and Elkins College where she became certified to teach K-12 as well as obtaining a Bachelor of Science in business. Upon graduation she began teaching in a small two room school at Doe Hill. Part of her job each morning was to light the hanging kerosene lamps and she practiced until she was able to hop from chair to chair and light them all with one wooden match. Parents would donate food so she would put the roast on to boil when she got to school, students would peel potatoes, and a parent would come before lunch to help get everything ready. She also taught at Short Gap and other schools before joining the staff at Circleville High School in 1957 to teach typing and shorthand. Over the years she trained students who were recruited for the FBI and CIA because of their clerical skills, students who served as court reporters for the United States Supreme Court, and in 1969 Louise and her student, Shirley Weese Sherman, were honored in Chicago as the National Touch Shorthand Teacher and Student of the Year.

Louise received her master's degree in counseling and when the South Branch Vocational Center opened, she began a second career in education serving as the center's counselor. When she retired from education, she and her husband built and opened Skate World, Bowers' Woodsedge Trailer Park, and Macksville Mart. A staunch Republican, Louise was a member of the Pendleton County Republican Committee, WVEA, PCEA, West Virginia Association of Retired School Employees, and was a 62year member of Franklin Chapter #138 Order of the Eastern Star. In 1950 she joined the WVU Extension Homemakers Onego-Seneca Club in order to drive her mother and her friends to meetings. She continued with the Dixie CEOS club making her a 73-year participant of the extension program. Although she was a member of High Rock Church, she taught Sunday School as long as she was able at Valley Chapel Church in Riverton.

Louise loved to travel-first with her friends Ivan and Debbie Jirak, and then later with the school groups that explored other countries. Some of her favorite trips were to Italy, Egypt, Israel, Australia, and Germany.

On December 24th, 1952, Louise married Ward Conley Bowers. This marriage lasted 47 years until Ward passed away in 1999. Along the way they had two daughters Mary Christine and Suelinn. In addition to her husband, she was preceded in death by her daughter Mary and her sister Juanita. She is survived by her daughter Suelinn, her sister Dottie Harman Roy, her brother John Verzich, five grandchildren-Kyle Mahluo, Kaela, Keenen, Patrick, and Miles Bowers; a special niece, Vickie Skavenski; three special nephews, Sonny O'Neil, Kevin Roy, and Carl Bowers; nieces Jeanne O'Neil and Angie Nestor; her goddaughter Deana Jirak and godson Jonathan Jirak; her angel of a caregiver, Caroline Hoffman, her nighttime companions, Sherry Hedrick, Nancy Watson, and Sally George, and four special friends—Patsy Hedrick, Dona Bennett, and Neil and Mary Robinson in addition to many great-nieces and nephews.

place, of these 23 run full 100% levies and 14 have at least 50%.

Webster said the county did not have any excess levy for education in place from the late 1990s and early 2000s until the current levy was passed in 2020. However, prior to that, levies were routinely voted on and funded in Grant County.

Webster explained that, when it comes to excess levies, Grant County is in a unique position due to the distribution of the county's tax burden.

"In our county, nearly 60% of the entire amount #### raised by our levy comes from the power plant," Webster said. "And that doesn't event affect Grant County residents, because they sell their power to Virginia. So that is a Virginia-based tax that can help fund West Virginia education. There probably isn't any other county in the state that has that opportunity."

This is in addition to the new tax credit that will allow state residents to write off their personal property taxes as tax credits.

"This is the first year it has come into effect," Webster explained. "But it will apply to personal property tax such as vehicles, but not real estate, and that personal property tax will be able to be written off as a tax credit, dollar for dollar."

The 2023 West Virginia Personal Property Tax Rebate was signed into legislation last year and will allow West Virginia taxpayers to write off personal property taxes. Webster said, for many taxpayers, personal property taxes are the highest tax amount paid annually.

Webster pointed to a recent state-mandated audit performed by an independent auditor that fully examined all the funds collected and used by the school system last year, including all levy money and funds received as part of the American Rescue Plan (ARP or Covid funds).

"We recently had a real-

However, the fiscal audit found no findings and returned with no recommendations, something Webster said is rare.

"The question at the end of the day is what do we want our communities and schools to look like," Webster said. "I want all kids, not just for my grandkids but for all of our children, to have the same opportunities they have in Doddridge County or in Kanawha County. And its just hard to do that without a levy."

Webster said the best way to look at the funding the school receives from state and federal sources, as meeting the very basic needs of a county's school system Any additional opportunities, extracurriculars or upgrades, need to be funded from other sources.

The final topic addressed by Webster is the often confusing ballot and voting directions surrounding elections for Grant County Board of Education members.

"That technology is perfect for what we need because it pretty much is the same thing, we are just dealing with humans instead of animals," Whetzel said. "The hope is that it will reduce the amount of time spent out in the woods. The plan is once we get on scene, as soon as we get a certified pilot there, we can send out the thermal drone to search before we even send rescue workers into the woods."

is Whetzel said the drone will allow rescuers to pinpoint the missing person's location and lead searchers straight to their location, reducing the danger to not only the missing person, but also the search and rescue workers.

"Nothing will ever be a 100% success rate," Whetzel said. "The helicopters don't even have a 100% success rate. But it is going to make it much easier and much safer. It will minimize the amount of manpower we need to put into the woods and help us, hopefully, find somebody quicker that could ultimately save a life that we may not have been able to without that technology."

Whetzel explained that he is currently a certified drone pilot and that several others in the county have taken the class and are planning to take the test for certification in the future.

Whetzel said beyond search and rescue efforts, the thermal drone can also be used to better battle fires, allowing first responders to get a better scope and understanding of the fire that could not be obtained without thermal imaging.

So, being able to get those aerial pictures can tell you not only what you have but also help in telling you the safety of that building."

Whetzel said he volunteered his own personal drone for use during the recent fires, however, said that while he was glad he could help, it would be beneficial to have one that belongs to and is always available to the fire companies and other public service agencies in the area.

"We are willing to work alongside law enforcement, I know they can be a great resources in cases of manhunts, the other fire departments in the county, we want this to be an effective resource for everyone," Whetzel said.

wildlife. Throughout history, many people have made assumptions and myths of what exactly happens to our surroundings during an eclipse. Plants and animals do not survive by assumption or myths, they react to nature and alter their behavioral cues according to what is happening around them. The darkened sky and lowered temperatures brought on by a solar eclipse causes the wildlife to act as if nighttime is near. In the plant and wildlife world, the sun is their clock. Why does this matter? Scientists, biologists and many more try to understand the effects on the natural world, because they can't talk to us.

We learn to understand nature through observations, changes in natural behavior and overall actions of living things. The world can learn so much through the eyes of things that don't speak to us with words.

Dreaming Again By Ashley Kisner, PHS

I found a beautiful spot to lean against a sturdy rock as the sun set behind the rocky peaks of the mountains, throwing a warm golden glow across the vast sky.

Watching the birds fly in the sky reminded me of how I was when I was younger, always running around with my siblings. Closing my eyes, smelling the pine, I drift off into a land where anything is possible.

Walking the mountain trail in the new land, I spot two people walking towards me. The first is a brown-haired woman, clearly confident, walking towards me. As she comes closer, I spot a sense of familiarity within her smile. In the blink of an eye, I'm no longer standing in front of her anymore, I'm her.

I thought being here would give me a sense of displacement, but I feel at home. She's confidently walking down a bustling street, listening to the live music playing outside of an old cafe. I know I've never heard of this song before, but it also feels like my favorite song.

Passing by the old cafe, looking for cars, the music starts to distract me as I step onto the road. I feel some pain; then I am back staring at the brown-haired girl's smile. The smile never falters even when she starts to apologize for the memory.

Before I can answer her, I am tapped on the shoulder by a blond curly-haired woman. Once again in the blink of an eye, I'm transported to another place, but this time I recognize the place; it's where I am now, in the real world.

I am watching the sunset from on top of the rock I'm asleep on. The only thing I feel now is pure joy. I don't think I've ever been this happy before. This time I have a dog by my side. He's a breed I've dreamed of owning one day. He's a beautiful Australian Shepard wearing a red harness, embroidered with the name Jasper.

Running around barking, he seems excited to have made it to the top of the mountain. I somehow know something bad is going to happen. Maybe he's going to slip or he's going to be attacked by something. I jump off the rock to try to grab him, I see him scared then I'm back in the strange place. The blondhaired woman starts to apologize like the brownhaired woman.

"I've always felt bad for Jasper. He didn't deserve to watch something like that." the brown-haired woman says. Bearing a sad smile, the blond-haired woman continues, "He was always so loyal; you know he stood by me for days after that.

"Back to the topic, hello Alex," the brown-haired woman says with a warming smile "I am you from a past life." I feel the realization settle into a pit of nervousness in my stomach. "You've had several lives. We are only two of them, others included being a scientist or a professor. You have had many adventures, some ended when you were old, and some ended young."

I take a breath in "Why am I here?" I asked, wanting answers. The blondhaired woman perks up, happy to hear the question "I got this one; we have been in this cycle for so long. Living and dying for nothing. We are forever cursed to this cycle; we make no change to this world no matter what we do.

For example, three lives ago when we were a scientist in the 1900s, we studied for so long on one thing, curing the Spanish Flu. When we finally figured it out and tried to make it known, we died."

Giving them a sympathetic smile, I ask "Why are we in this cycle?"

The brown-haired woman glances at the blondhaired woman and says, "In all our lives, we lived to impress others. We never lived to just live. We believe that this cycle will continue until we stop caring about what others think."

"That's all? I thought it would be something difficult." I say chuckling to myself. "Everyone lives to impress someone, whether it's their boss, parent, sibling, friend, or a stranger. It's impossible to not care." Looking at both sad women I ask, "How will this cycle ever end?"

The blond-haired woman looks up at me. "That's the point it's impossible. The only thing we can do is hope for someone to come along and change it."

Starting to feel myself wake, I quickly ask, "Why tell me if I can't do anything to stop it?" Feeling myself fade out of the strange land, I focus everything onto the voice, but all I can hear is "When you die, you'll be..."

I wake up soon after. I live three years more. I never figure out what I am supposed to do. I spend my last years living, studying my past lives and trying to piece them together. Even after my death, I never stop studying hoping one day I'll see the brown and blond-haired women again. Even now, ten years after my death, all I can do is hope this cycle will end as I sit in my bedroom, petting my puppy, Jasper.

Lady Vikings hold a 13-4 record with several more games left in the season before playoffs

Following a Saturday afternoon win over Berkeley Springs (14-5) and a loss to Pendleton County (16-8), the Lady Vikings are sitting at a 13-4 record for the season.

The team has picked up several strong wins this season, including back-toback early season 23-2 and 13-0 victories over Berkeley Springs, a 9-0 victory over East Hardy High and a 14-6 victory over Moorefield High.

The team is led by head coach Dwayne "Bubba" Hedrick with assistance from Doug Swick, Estel Sites, Derek Cooper, Jamie Alt, Matt Allanson and Kayla Roby.

Lady Vikings playing on the 2023-24 team are: senior Samantha Colaw; junior Addison Kitzmiller; sophomores Olivia Kimble, Gracie Carpenter, Ella Chew and Kylei Berg and freshmen: Shyane Tawney, Jordan Riggleman, Claire Kaposy, Lacey Moyers, Chevenne Sites, Miley

The team is still set to face off against multiple local teams, including Tucker County, Frankfort, Pendleton County and Keyser High School.

The team has already picked up victories over Tucker and Frankit will be the first time this season they match off against Keyser High School.

The Lady Vikings are next set to take on Allegany High School tonight at Michael Field at 6 p.m.

MES archery qualifies to compete in the national Archery tournament

The Maysville Elementary School Archery team has announced that the team has qualified to compete in the annual National Archery in Schools Program (NASP) National Archery Tournament set to take place in Kentucky next month. The team competed late last month in the NASP state tournament in Charleston. During the event, archer Callie Roberts finished in sixth place in the elementary school girls division and John Watts, who finished sixth in the elementary school boys division.

The MES archers are set to shoot at the national tournament on May 11.

Help raise funds for your cause: Registration for the 17th annual Run For It race now open

The Tucker Community Foundation announces the launch of its yearly Run For It campaign. The campaign will conclude with a 2k walk and a 5k walk/ run on Sept. 28, in Davis, W.Va., in conjunction with the annual Leaf Peepers Festival.

Participants and teams can now register for the race.

To register, individuals and teams can easily sign up online by visiting runsignup.com/Race/WV/ Davis/RunForIt or completing the individual and team registration forms on the foundation's website at tuckerfoundation.net/run.

Online registration is encouraged to simplify the registration process.

Team registration for in-person and virtual races ends Aug. 31, and individual registration for in-person and virtual races ends Sept. 21.

Run For It is more than just a race; it is a fundraising opportunity that supports a wide range of causes that make a positive difference in the communities they serve.

The program has generated over $2.8 million for nonprofit and charitable organizations in Barbour, Grant, Mineral, Pocahontas, Preston, Randolph and Tucker counties in West Virginia and Garrett County, Md.

The causes supported include the arts, animal welfare, challenged athletes, charities, churches, civic organizations, community improvement projects, cultural organizations, educational activities, emergency services, environmental causes, historic preservation, hospital and medical programs, libraries and literacy programs, parks and recreation, senior citizen programs, Tucker Community Foundation operations, and youth organizations.

According to Angie Pase, development director for the Tucker Community Foundation, "Nonprofit and charitable organizations in our region often struggle with limited resources, but Run For It encourages these organizations to use their resources to gain critical operational support. The program has been immensely successful, and it also serves as a great networking opportunity that has brought together various agencies, programs, projects, and people to promote a healthy lifestyle and regional philanthropy. We strongly encourage every nonprofit or charitable organization in our service region to participate in this one-of-a-kind fundraising opportunity."

Over the past 16 years, Run For It has positively impacted the local economy by attracting serious racers and families to the area and supporting local businesses.

In 2023, the event attracted 1,389 walkers and runners and raised approximately $287,595. These funds helped 79 nonprofit organizations and groups in the Potomac Highlands and beyond.

To learn more about Run For It, visit runsignup.com/Race/WV/Davis/ RunForIt or tuckerfoundation.net/run. You can also contact the Foundation by email at runforit@tuckerfoundation.net or by phone at 304-478-2930.

Hello, my name is Nic James and I am a lifetime republican running for Circuit Court Judge, Division 1 in the 25th Judicial Circuit (Mineral and Grant counties) a non-partisan judicial election.

My parents were residents of Mineral County when I was born and we lived in Short Gap until we moved to Cumberland. My wife Jackie and I have been married for 16 years and we built our first house in the Ridgeley area of Mineral County over 12 years ago.

We have an 8-year-old son, Owen, 2-year-old

Eastern Regional 4-H team takes home awards

The WVU Extension Eastern Regional 4-H Team took home two state awards at the West Virginia Extension Agents 4-H Association Meeting.

The team, that consists of 4-H agents from Grant, Hardy, Pendleton, Hampshire, Mineral, Morgan, Berkley, and Jefferson counties.

They won two awards: The first was "Excellence in Camping" for regional overnight camping efforts and the second was "Excellence in Teamwork" for the combined efforts of teaching, research, and service to the region and state.

daughter, Marlowe, and 12-year- old German shorthaired pointer, Penny.

Jackie has served the community as a pharmacist over the past 15 years. Owen is a student in Mineral County Public Schools and plays soccer and baseball. We are parishioners at Annunciation of Our Lord Parish Catholic Church in Fort Ashby.

I have volunteered extensively in the community coaching youth baseball and soccer in the Frankfort District for many years. In my free time, I enjoy the great outdoors, sports and antique trucks from the early '50s.

I am 41 years old and have practiced law for 17 years with an undergraduate degree from University of Maryland and a law degree from WVU. Upon graduation, I successfully passed the bar exam at the age of 24 and was admitted to the West Virginia bar. I am also admitted to the bar in Maryland.

While in law school I worked hard to distinguish myself. I was selected to serve as an associate editor on the West Virginia Law Review, a high academic honor.

I further distinguished myself by winning the prestigious CALI award in Civil and Criminal Procedure, which are two vital areas of law for judges. A CALI award is given to the law student with the highest grade in the class.

Over my 17 year legal career with the James Law Firm I have extensively practiced law in both Mineral and Grant counties. I commonly have court in Grant County on a weekly basis. Over the years our firm has taken on some very complex cases, both criminal and civil.

I have also successfully argued cases before the West Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals. I have had the honor to practice law with my dad, Dan James, in Keyser.

My legal experience, ethics, education and qualifications were closely examined by the Judicial Vacancy Commission in Charleston in May, 2023, upon Judge Lynn Nelson announcing his retirement from the bench.

I submitted to an intense, robust examination and interview of my legal knowledge moral fitness and integrity. I received their approval as one of the "best qualified" candidates from the six applicants even though I am the youngest of those who applied.

A quality of a good judge is the ability to not just know the law, but to perceive, comprehend, and understand new concepts and ideas. I can provide that fresh perspective and possess this quality.

I am highly regarded by both the bench and bar. I possess the courage to do what the law requires of a judge even if unpopular and the integrity not to be influenced by race, gender, age, identity, political status, wealth or relationships of a party.

I seek your support and vote on May 14, 2024 and look forward to the privilege serving the great people of West Virginia for many years to come. Thank you.

artists, artisans for 2024 season

Seneca Rocks Discovery Center, in cooperation with the Eastern National Forest Interpretive Association, seeks artists and artisans to exhibit their traditional Appalachian crafts or contemporary artwork related to Monongahela National Forest during the 2024 season.

Also, in addition to visual artists, the Seneca Rocks Discovery Center seeks individuals or groups who demonstrate performative arts, like traditional dance, spoken word or short theatrical performances.

"We love showcasing the talents of local artists and artisans at the Seneca Rocks Discovery Center. Artists have a special way of connecting visitors to the landscape and cultural heritage of the Appalachians," said Mandy Harmon, Seneca Rocks Discovery Center Assistant Director.

All artists are asked to submit a small portfolio of their work with up to five attached images or a link to an online portfolio.

For more information or to submit your portfolio, contact Harmon at mary-amanda.harmon@ usda.gov.

Rocks The Seneca Discovery Center is open April 5 - May 12, Friday -Sunday. The center will be open daily May 17 - October 27. Hours of operation are 9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Seneca Rocks Discover Center is located at 13 Roy Gap Road. Entrance to the main parking lot is off U.S. 33, just south of the U.S. 33/State Route 28 intersection in Seneca Rocks.

GO FIGURE!
