

LOCAL FLAVOR

By Camille Howard
It's wedding month and there isn't a wedding on the horizon for us. Usually our schedule is filled with weddings and showers during the spring and summer. Several years ago, Craig officiated 14 weddings in one summer!

I've always enjoyed going to weddings and receptions. What a nice reminder about love and happiness in the world, which is why it's unfortunate things are on hold for weddings this summer. We could all use a reminder about love and happiness about now.

I've witnessed some interesting things at wedding ceremonies over the years. One that sticks in my mind is the time when the couple were exchanging vows and the videographer was on stage in the corner capturing every word. As she was backing up to get a better view, she got too close to the lighted candelabra and caught her hair on fire. She didn't realize at first until people started yelling and rushed to her to put the fire out.

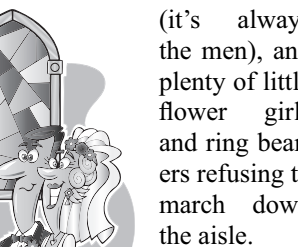

Another time, the bride was blowing out the candle she lit as part of the unity ceremony and caught her veil on fire. Instead of the groom removing the veil, he started smacking her in the face to douse the flames.

Craig's had some interesting close calls, like the time he was praying over a kneeling bride and groom with his hands on their heads and the one hand got stuck to the bride's head because of all the hairspray she had on her up-do.

Another time he totally blanked out on the groom's last name when it was time to announce the new Mr. and Mrs. Fortunately he happened to look at the groom and as part of his military dress uniform he was wearing a name tag, which saved the day. Now all names are printed and taped inside the pages of his minister's manual.

I've seen groomsman pass out and topple over like felled trees, grooms getting wobbly legged (it's always the men), and plenty of little flower girls and ring bearers refusing to march down the aisle.

One of the worst things I've witnessed is one groom who decided to sing to his bride during the ceremony. It was excruciating to hear since he couldn't carry a tune in a bucket.

I've yet to hear anyone object to a marriage during the ceremony, but I'm sure it's happened. I do know at least one person who was left standing at the altar, though.

GLAZED PORK AND APPLE KEBABS
1/2 cup apricot preserves
1 teaspoon lemon zest
5 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoon Dijon mustard
2 teaspoon fresh rosemary, finely chopped
1 tablespoon olive oil, plus more for rubbing
1 tablespoon prepared horseradish, drained
Kosher salt and pepper
1 shallot, thinly sliced
1 1 1/4-pound pork tenderloin
2 gala apples, cored
1 small head green leaf lettuce, torn, or 1 5-ounce package mixed greens
Wooden skewers
Heat grill to medium-high. In a small bowl, whisk together the preserves, the lemon zest, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, the Dijon mustard, and the rosemary. Reserve all but 2 tablespoons glaze.

In a large bowl, whisk together the oil, the horseradish, 2 tablespoons apricot glaze, remaining 2 tablespoons lemon juice, and 1/4 teaspoon each salt and pepper. Add the shallot; toss to coat.

Cut the pork into 1-inch pieces. Cut each apple into eight wedges, then cut the wedges in half crosswise. Thread the pork and apples onto eight 8-inch skewers. Rub with oil and season with 1/4 teaspoon each salt and pepper.

Grill the skewers, turning occasionally, for 3 minutes. Brush with glaze and continue grilling, turning and brushing occasionally with the glaze until just cooked through, about 3 minutes more.

Toss shallots and dressing with the lettuce and serve with the skewers and any remaining glaze on the side for dipping.

NOTICE OF CANCELLATION

It is with very heavy hearts that the Tri-County Fair Board of Directors announces the very difficult decision to postpone the 100th annual fair until July 31 - August 7, 2021. With current restrictions on mass gatherings and no clear direction from government entities at the present time, the board simply sees no choice.

This decision was not made lightly, as the board has been working diligently since the end of the 2019 fair to bring the Tri-County community a memorable 100th year celebration. However, the health and safety of our community and visitors is of utmost importance. Plans are now underway to make the 2021 fair one for the record books!

In an effort to help offset the livestock exhibitor's expenses, the board is planning an online livestock auction. Specific details (date, requirements, etc.) regarding this sale will be forthcoming.

To our Sponsors - Thank you for your support of our Fair. If you purchased and paid for an ad in the 2020 Fair Supplement we will hold the funds and confirm your ad prior to printing next year's supplement. Also, if you made a donation to the Barn Party we will use those funds towards next year's party. Please continue to watch the Tri-County Fair website and Facebook page for upcoming events at the fairgrounds!

Carrying or tossing the load

By Camille Howard

The school year is finally over, and it was a strange one, with students learning from home, school personnel meeting to assemble and distribute food throughout the county, spring sports canceled and a complete disruption of the senior year of the Class of 2020.

While some see this disruption as “not a big deal,” it is a big deal to not only the seniors, but their families.

We’ve all had to make changes in relation to the mandates set down by federal, state and local officials, and our schools and businesses have had to make decisions and adjustments that seem neither fair nor just.

And for our seniors, there is no going back, no do-over, no getting back to normal. The end of the school year has been lost and along with it many possible lifetime memories. For their parents, it’s the last hurrah for their sons and daughters before they head out into the world of college and careers and they are disappointed that things have turned out this way.

While some things have been scheduled, such as the senior awards ceremony on Wednesday, June 24, National Honor Society induction on the same evening, followed by baccalaureate, and then graduation on Friday, the social distancing and mask wearing are a mark of the times we are living in.

Is there anything to be learned from all this change and disruption? If nothing else, we’ve been forced to be flexible in our attitudes and actions or carry the heavy load of disgruntled unhappiness on our backs.

To carry that load, or not, is a decision we all have to make, including our graduating seniors. Some decisions we make, and some are made for us, but how we respond is all up to us.

Next year, all the regrets of what could have been will be swallowed up in the adventure of daily life unless we hang on to the old disappointments. Toss away that weight and let your energy be put toward living the happiest and best life possible.

That doesn’t mean what’s been going on never happened and we were never affected; it means all of us, graduates included, have had to come to terms with our circumstances, get out of our comfort zones and press on.

I don’t think our grads will have any trouble doing just that.

Public pools and the coronavirus - it's not over yet

Martinsburg Journal

That loud groan you may have heard a few days ago came from hundreds of West Virginians viewing a video that has gained some infamy. It shows hundreds of people packed shoulder to shoulder for a swimming pool party at Lake of the Ozarks in Missouri.

All right, you probably didn’t hear any loud groan - but we suspect many area residents who saw the video registered their displeasure. West Virginia Gov. Jim Justice did, during a press briefing on the COVID-19 epidemic.

“For crying out loud, they’re having a pool party and they’ve got a thousand people that are all around the pool and just rubbing arms and touching each other and right up against one another,” Justice exclaimed.

He was absolutely right to be upset. With the coronavirus still a serious threat - it has killed more than 100,000 Americans in just three months - now is not the time to relax our efforts to keep the disease from spreading.

Nearly all those seen in videos such as the one from Missouri appear to be younger people, probably under 40. The risk to them, assuming they are in good health generally, is low. But we know they can serve as carriers of COVID-19, infecting older men and women for whom the virus can be deadly.

Why are so many people behaving as if the epidemic is over? It is not.

Officials in several communities have made the decision already to keep municipal pools closed this year. A few pools were set to open on May 30, the first day they are permitted to do so in West Virginia. A few others states may open for the season this month.

Good. With proper health safeguards such as social distancing, that should be no problem. But if pool patrons abuse the system with anything like the misbehavior being seen in some other regions of the country, the pools will shut down. Bank on it.

Keep that in mind if you plan to swim in a public pool. We expect the vast majority of people in West Virginia will behave appropriately, simply because it is the right thing to do.

But if that is not enough incentive, think about your actions forcing pool managers to shut down - as they should - and stay that way during the sweltering days of July and August.

George Floyd, protester violence, and the golden rule

By Dr. Glenn Mollette

The death of George Floyd at the hands of police should never have happened.

It was murder and a dark moment in America. The looting, terrorism and burning of American cities by so called protesters is criminal and a dark moment in America.

The Minneapolis police officers involved in Floyd’s death must be held accountable. The criminals involved in wrecking American cities, robbing and burning businesses must be held accountable.

Americans have the right to free speech. Free speech does not mean destroying property, hurting police officers and criminal activities.

The question many Americans are asking today is who is funding these criminal, terroristic riots that have happened across America? People are showing up from other cities and states to wreak havoc and chaos in American cities. Who is paying their travel? Who is providing their lodging? Who is paying them money? Are there really this many evil, bad people in America? Obviously, there are because the acts of violence displayed on national television are not coming from peaceful protesters. We have seen and heard about many peaceful protesters. Thousands of people have made their protests in a peaceful, honorable way.

No one blames anyone for being upset and angry about what happened to George Floyd. It made me angry. I would be willing to march with anyone to cry out against such an act and event. It was horrific and wrong and the officers must be punished. The looters and criminals who have vandalized and saw Floyd’s death as an opportunity to pursue criminal activity also must be put in jail and punished.

America is in deep trouble. We are still in the middle of Covid-19 with the prospects of a fall resurgence. Unemployment soars. Businesses have closed and many are struggling to hold on. Economically our nation is buried.

The future of our older generation is at great risk and the younger generation has not grasped yet what is really in store for them financially. The economic plight of this nation has put the realization of the American dream at great risk for America’s children.

We desperately need a revival of “rightness” in America. There was a day when people believed in strong morals, decency, respect and the golden rule. This “rightness or rule” must happen from all the politicians, to the police officers, to the protesters and to every person in America. The preachers in America must get this message out. The politicians must get this message out. We must put this message into our daily living. Or, it’s over for America.

Here’s the rule again, “Treat others the way you want to be treated.”

As new pre-trial law goes into effect, advocates push for widespread utilization amid COVID-19

Advocates for criminal justice reform heralded the new pre-trial legislation that went into effect Friday June 5, as especially critical given the looming threat of COVID-19 in overcrowded regional jails and prisons.

House Bill 2419, passed by the state legislature during the 2020 regular session, intends to reduce the number of people incarcerated pretrial for low-level misdemeanor charges.

The bill provides a presumption of release for a person charged with non-violent misdemeanor offenses unless good cause is shown that the person should not be released, or when the person is charged with a more serious misdemeanor offense as outlined in the legislation, for example crimes involving a child or a deadly weapon.

HB 2419 outlines state policy against the unnecessary incarceration of arrested persons pending trial and also places a limit for cash bail in misdemeanor offenses at no more than three times the maximum fine for the offense.

The new law says that courts should use the least restrictive condition or combination of conditions “reasonably necessary” to ensure appearance at future court dates, the safety of the community, and the maintenance of relevant evidence.

When someone remains incarcerated after their initial appearance because they cannot meet the requirements of a secured bond, the magistrate or judge who set the secured bond must hold a subsequent hearing within 72 hours of setting the initial bail.

The hope is to safely lower county jail bills and the burden on taxpayers as the daily cost of incarcerating a person in regional jails is $48.25. On June 3, alone, 349 people were incarcerated for pretrial misdemeanor charges, costing counties and taxpayers $16,839.

From a procedural fairness standpoint, the bill seeks to reduce the likelihood and the length of time that a person, who has not been convicted of a crime, is incarcerated while awaiting their day in court.

is incarcerated while awaiting their day in court.

Studies show that the impact of pre-trial incarceration can be dire because in many cases people lose their jobs, their home, and experience lasting negative effects for themselves and their family.

Moreover there is overwhelming evidence that people who are incarcerated pretrial are more likely to be found guilty and more likely to take a guilty plea for a crime they did not commit, than those who can either afford bail or who are released on a personal recognizance bond.

Based on a randomized survey of judges nationally, a Princeton University study found that 43 percent of detained defendants plead guilty compared to just 20.8 percent of released defendants. Detained defendants are also 15 percent more likely to be incarcerated compared to released defendants, and have prison sentences that are 264.6 days longer on average.

With a renewed spotlight both nationally and in West Virginia on persisting racial disparities in policing and the criminal justice system as a whole, the legislation has heightened significance given that in West Virginia black people are 3.5% of the total state population, but 13% of the state’s incarcerated population.

For further context, advocates point out that on March 2, before the COVID-19 response plan went into effect and the jail population started decreasing, there were 583 people incarcerated pre-trial for misdemeanor charges, costing taxpayers $28,129.

Later in March and through April, when the state was rapidly responding to the COVID-19 pandemic, police were making fewer arrests and the WV Supreme Court issued directives for the lower courts to expedite preliminary bond hearings. As a result, the pretrial misdeemeanant population dropped 60 percent.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

I would like to know who provided the picture with the paragraph above.

Somebody got things mixed up. The Mill at Spring Run was owned by Abraham A. Sites from the early 1800s and then by his Crime generally did not increase during this period of decreased jail population, raising the question as to the efficacy and cost-effectiveness of incarceration as the primary means of public safety.

Lida Shepherd with American Friends Service Committee who advocated for the bill says, “From a public health and safety perspective, this new law is an opportunity to reduce the jail churn in and out of regional jails and the likelihood of another COVID-19 outbreak like we saw in Huttonsville and the surrounding community. And even absent the COVID-19 threat, West Virginians presumed innocent should not have their freedom contingent upon their income, and certainly not their skin color. This new law is a step towards more fairness in West Virginia’s criminal justice system.”

Coalition members include: American Friends Service Committee, Mountain State Justice, Jefferson County NAACP, WV Center on Budget and Policy, Americans for Prosperity-WV, American Civil Liberties Union-WV son, Achim W. Sites, until about 1945, when Achim sold it to the West Virginia Department of Natural Resources for the fish hatchery at Spring Run.

I suspect that the log building pictured was located along Elkhorn Run, and the people pictured in the windows were members of the Ed Vance family. The old building at Ed Vance’s home place was about two miles from the mill at Spring Run.

The Press received a letter from George Reid Jr. of Sarasota, Fla. concerning the placement of a historical marker at Turner Park. It is as follows:

“Just before Memorial Day, staff from the Grant County Parks and Recreation Department placed a historical marker at Turner Park in Maysville.

“The marker describes the history of the property being donated to Grant County in 1975 by the Rod & Gun Club and naming of Turner Park after my grandfather, Evers Turner, who was president of the club for many years.

“Recent events have deterred me from traveling to West Virginia to properly dedicate the marker. I do wish to thank Grant County Parks and Recreation and especially Sandy Weimer for assisting in developing the marker, along with the crew who installed it. I also want to thank Tim and Frances Park for keeping the marker at Petersburg Block over the winter, waiting for a date to install.

“My grandfather would be pleased that the park is still available for picnics, recreation and shooting. Many Grant County residents remember the annual Labor Day picnic and shooting match sponsored by the Rod & Gun Club at the park.

“I tagged along with my grandfather as he and others made extensive preparations for the picnic and shooting match. I ask everyone to join me again (as in 1975) in dedicating the park to the memory of Evers Turner, past Rod & Gun Club members, and future picnickers and shooters.”

Secretary of State announces historic participation in absentee voting for June Primary Election

In the last West Virginia presidential primary, fewer than 6,700 registered voters participated by absentee ballot. However, over the past three months, amid the COVID-19 pandemic, election officials throughout the state have worked together to educate voters on the safe absentee-by-mail option. Based on record absentee turnout numbers, the public education strategy proved successful.

According to West Virginia Secretary of State Mac Warner, as of the close of business on June 4, a total of 262,441 voters had applied for an absentee ballot. Of those, 191,346 had already returned their completed ballots. Absentee voters in this primary election make up about 15.6% of the state’s registered voters.

“West Virginia offers voters more options to cast a ballot than any other state in the nation,” Warner said. “Working with our county clerks, we are making sure that every option is safe and secure.”

Warner said the Secretary of State’s office and county clerks have been working together to encourage voters who did not vote by absentee to vote in-person on Election Day.

“We want voters to know that casting a ballot in-person will be safe and secure,” Warner said. “Counties have received guidance on how to disinfect polling locations, sanitize equipment, and properly run in-person voting. With state and federal health officials recommending social distancing, voters should anticipate lines that may appear long – though wait times should not be increased.

“With record numbers of people exercising absentee and early voting options, we do not anticipate long wait times at polls. We also recommend voters wear a mask to protect others if they choose to do so.”

In the tri-county area, Grant County has 7,407 registered voters. Of those, 1,681 requested absentee ballots or 22.7%. Of the requested ballots, 1,285 were returned meaning 17.3% of the total registered voters in the county used an absentee ballot to vote in the primary election.

Hardy County has 8,601 registered voters and 2,146 requested an absentee ballot or 25%. Of that number, 1,693 ballots were returned or 19.5% of the total registered placed their vote using an absentee ballot.

Pendleton County has 5,107 registered voters with 27.5% (1,403) requesting an absentee ballot. Of that number, 1,125 returned their ballots or 22% of the total registered voters in that county used an absentee ballot to cast their vote.

Fire commissioner removed by governor over social media posts

A West Virginia fire commissioner has been removed over “inappropriate and inflammatory” social media posts, Gov. Jim Justice said.

Martin Hess was removed last Thursday from the West Virginia State Fire Commission after Justice was made aware of various recent posts, the governor said in a statement.

The brief statement did not describe the posts, but news outlets reported that one showed Hess wearing a shirt that said “all lives splatter, nobody cares about your protest” and depicted a vehicle hitting people.

“I will not tolerate behavior like this from anyone representing the State of West Virginia,” Justice said.

The action comes after the West Virginia National Guard last week said it was pursuing disciplinary action against a guardsman who posted on social media that he would attack people protesting the death of George Floyd.

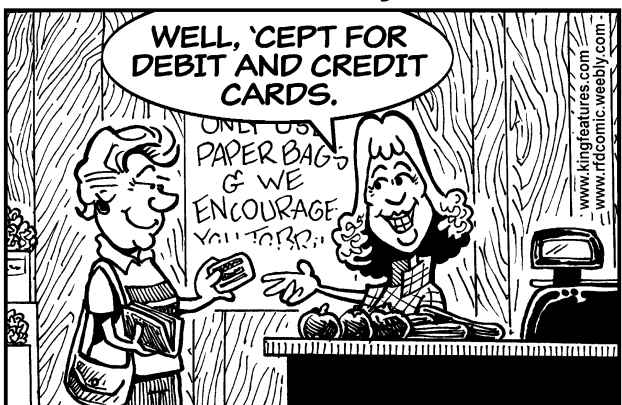

The guardsman, Noah Garcelon, has already resigned from his position as an officer with the Winfield Police Department after making the comments.

In a series of now-deleted posts, Garcelon wrote that he would “start firing live rounds” at protesters and “see how many I can run over before my car breaks down.”

West Virginia has had a handful of peaceful protests over the death of Floyd, who died after a police officer in Minneapolis pressed his knee into his neck even after he stopped moving and pleading for air.

The death has set off days of both peaceful demonstrations and bursts of theft, vandalism and attacks on police across the nation. More than 10,000 people have been arrested at protests nationwide, according to an Associated Press tally.

WV Attorney General files lawsuits against Rite-Aid, Walgreens

West Virginia Attorney General Patrick Morrisey filed lawsuits against Rite-Aid and Walgreens alleging the two opioid distributors reaped billions of dollars in revenues, while their conduct caused immense harm to West Virginia and its citizens.

The lawsuits allege Rite-Aid and Walgreens, as individual distributors, supplied far more opioids to their retail pharmacies than necessary to meet a legitimate market, and not even that was enough as the retail pharmacies ordered additional pills from other distributors to fulfill demand.

The attorney general contends Rite-Aid and Walgreens each knew its obligation to halt suspicious orders to its retail pharmacies, but failed to monitor for and report such activity.

“Prescription opioid pill mills and rogue prescribers cannot channel opioids for illicit use without at least the tacit support and willful blindness of distributors, if not their knowing support,” Morrisey said. “Those who unconscionably help create our state’s opioid epidemic should be held accountable, pay for their role in the crisis and act to remediate the problem. West Virginia deserves nothing less.”

Each company was among the state’s top 10 opioid distributors from 2006 to 2014, during which the Rite-Aid lawsuit estimates it distributed the equivalent of more than 87 million, 10-milligram oxycodone pills and its retail pharmacies ordered another 127.5 million pills from other distributors to fulfill demand.

Likewise, the Walgreens complaint estimates it distributed the equivalent of 29.6 million pills and its pharmacies ordered another 17.6 million.

The lawsuit additionally points to a pattern of systemic failures at Walgreens to meet its legal obligations, which included development of a system to detect and block shipment of suspicious orders.

The civil complaints, filed last Wednesday in Putnam County Circuit Court, do not assert claims related to either company’s role in dispensing opioids to patients, but maintain that such retail data offered Rite-Aid and Walgreens unique knowledge and notice that their operations were meeting more than a legitimate market demand.

Rather than report suspicious orders and stop diversion, the lawsuits allege Rite-Aid and Walgreens continued to sell, ship and profit from the highly dangerous and addictive prescription painkillers.

The attorney general alleges conduct by Rite-Aid and Walgreens violated the state’s Consumer Credit and Protection Act and caused a public nuisance. Both lawsuits seek injunctive and equitable relief.

Rite-Aid, the nation’s third-largest retail drug store chain in 2017, sold its 1,651 stores to Walgreens Boot Alliance between 2017 and 2018, including 104 stores in West Virginia.

These civil complaints follow lawsuits filed last year against opioid manufacturers Purdue Pharma, Johnson & Johnson, Teva Pharmaceuticals, Endo Health Solutions Inc. and Mallinckrodt LLC.

Nominations open for Alzheimer's Association "Homegrown Heroes" contest

June is Alzheimer's and Brain Awareness Month. The West Virginia Chapter of the Alzheimer's Association is celebrating with a "Homegrown Heroes" contest in recognition of the commitment, strength and perseverance of the Alzheimer's community.

The Homegrown Heroes contest, sponsored by PhRMA, will recognize dementia caregivers, frontline workers caring for this vulnerable population, first responders, and all those fighting to end Alzheimer's and dementia.

Through June 14, individuals can nominate ordinary people who do extraordinary things. Nominations can be made by sharing the nominee's photos and stories with the WV Chapter.

To nominate a Homegrown Hero, call the W.Va. Chapter at 304-343-2717, or email wvinfo@alz.org. Entries should include a photo of the nominee with a brief (150 words or less) description of how the hero has helped fight Alzheimer's and dementia.

With the hope of inspiring others, the Alzheimer's Association will feature the nominations on social media June 15-20. The public can vote for the most inspiring "Homegrown Heroes" by "liking" their photos on the chapter's Facebook page.

All nominees will receive recognition. The five individuals receiving the most votes will be awarded a custom Blenko glass piece and yard sign to display at their homes or work.

Winners will be announced the evening of June 20, which is also the summer solstice and the longest day of the year.

"The day with the most light is the day we fight," said Sharon M. Rotenberry, executive director of the W.Va. Chapter. "The Longest Day is when many volunteers host fundraisers for the association. We

"We could not have pivoted so quickly without the help of our volunteer leaders, advocates as well as Walk to End Alzheimer's and The Longest Day committee members.

West Virginia hunters harvest 11,314 turkeys during spring 2020 season

According to preliminary data, West Virginia hunters harvested 11,314 birds during the spring turkey season, a slight increase over the 2019 harvest of 11,215.

The 2020 spring turkey harvest is close to the five-year average of 11,344 and 9 percent above the 10-year average.

“We had a good harvest this year thanks to a great youth turkey season,” said Mike Peters, wild turkey biologist for the West Virginia Division of Natural Resources. “The youth turkey season expanded to two days this year and it appears our young hunters took advantage of the additional opportunity.”

Youth hunters harvested 643 gobblers during the two days — 368 on Saturday and 275 on Sunday — representing a 37 percent increase over last year’s youth harvest.

Those numbers are included in the table below with county totals.

Districts 4 and 5 reported slight harvest increases over last year’s totals.

The remaining districts harvested slightly fewer birds than last year.

District 1 harvested

the most birds (2,749), followed by District 6 (2,284), District 5 (2,131), District 4 (1,617), District 3 (1,521) and District 2 (1,012).

The top five counties with the highest turkey harvest were Mason (457), Preston (434), Jackson (402), Wood (344) and Harrison (339) counties.

DNR reminds public to wear life jackets while enjoying water recreation

As the summer boating season approaches, the West Virginia Division of Natural Resources is reminding members of the public to wear life jackets while boating or swimming in lakes, rivers and streams.

Most water-related deaths, injuries and incidents in West Virginia happen because someone was not wearing a life jacket or personal flotation device. Throughout the summer months, the DNR will post reminders about safe boating and swimming on social media as part of a campaign called Operation Life Jacket.

“West Virginia has a variety of creeks, rivers and lakes and we want folks to be able to enjoy going for a swim or taking their boat out for a day on the water,” said Lt. Warren Goodson, state training coordinator for the DNR’s Law Enforcement Section. “But you need to be safe and wear your life jacket.”

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, there are an average of 3,536 non-boating related drowning deaths each year in the United States. An additional 332 people die each year from drowning in boating-related incidents. About one in five people who die from drowning are children 14 and younger.

Half of all boating deaths might be prevented with the use of life jackets, according to the CDC. They also greatly reduce the risk of injury.

“Life jackets reduce the risk of injury and can save your life,” Goodson said. “You may never get in a car wreck, but wearing a seatbelt is there to protect you in the event that something unfortunate happens. A life jacket does the same thing.”

Swimming Safety

• The West Virginia Division of Natural Resources offers these swimming safety tips for families:

• Teach kids water safety, first aid and CPR before swimming in a natural body of water. You can contact your local Red Cross for guidance.

• Never swim alone. Always have a partner. Never allow kids to swim unsupervised or be near water while unattended.

• Make sure your life jacket is properly fitted.

• Never dive or jump into an unknown area in a natural body of water. Swim in designated areas.

• Avoid swift current, flood waters and low head dam areas.

• Never consume alcohol or drugs and get into the water.

• Take breaks from swimming to avoid fatigue.

• Wear sunblock.

Sky Sights: June is a month of extremes

June is a month of extremes in regard to the sun. In June, the earliest sunrises occur at 5:47 a.m. from now through June 20. The latest sunsets occur at 8:47 p.m. from June 23 to July 2. The longest duration of daily sunlight is 14 hours and 59 minutes from June 20 through June 22.

All these extremes are related to the start of summer, when the sun appears farthest north on June 20 and reaches its greatest height in the midday sky. The sun's vertical rays then reach the Tropic of Cancer at latitude 23.5 degrees north. Locally, the sun appears 73 degrees altitude in the south at midday (1:16 p.m.).

In early June, the planet Venus nearly passes in front of the sun and is lost in the sun's glare. Venus' rapid motion will allow it to be seen low at dawn on June 19 when it appears above a slender crescent moon in the 5:20 a.m. southeast dawn. By the end of June, Venus will be a glorious sight in the southeast dawn. For the rest of the summer and into the early fall, Venus will be the "morning star" at dawn.

The moon was full on June 5, when it appeared in the star group Ophiuchus, the Serpent Bearer.

On June 9, the moon will be below the planet Saturn in the early morning hours. The moon will appear near the planet Mars in the early morning hours of June 13.

June is the best month to spot the Big Dipper (of seven stars) high in the northern evening sky. Its three-star handle points straight up. Below the handle is the four-star bowl. The two end bowl stars point down and to the right to the North Star, Polaris. Far below the North Star is Cassiopeia, whose five bright stars resemble a recliner rocker.

In the east sparkles the bright star Vega. In the western sky is an arch of bright winter evening stars, soon to depart. From left to right are the stars Procyon, Pollux, Castor and Capella.

Conceptis Hitori

Each puzzle consists of a square grid with numbers appearing in all squares. The object is to shade squares so:

1	5	3	1	2
5	4	1	3	4
3	4	3	1	5
4	4	2	3	3
2	1	5	4	4

1	5	3	2
5	4	1	3
3	4	1	5
4	2	3	3
2	1	5	4

- No number appears in a row or column more than once.
- Shaded (black) squares do not touch each other vertically or horizontally.
- When completed, all un-shaded (white) squares create a single continuous area.

GO FIGURE!

by Linda Thistle
